Create

Queen Elizabeth II is our reigning monarch but it is a family affair. Create a family tree of the House of Windsor starting with the Queen and down to her grandchildren. Who will be next in line to be King or Queen?

Play

Time to have some fun. Download the free games of Stronghold or Hustle Castle on an iPad. They're fun ways to design your own castle and explore the life of a Medieval ruler.

Map Work

Some people say that monarchies are a thing of the past.

Find a map of the world and see which countries still have a Monarch. Some countries might surprise you.

Label the map with who the current King, Queen, Emir, Emperor, Sultan, etc is.

Research and Write

Choose a King or Queen to research. You can choose an English Monarch or one from another country. They can be from any time in history as well.

Present your information as a Fact File, Chronological Report or Biography.

Watch and Enjoy

Time Team are archaeologists who discover some wonderful places around the UK. Watch and enjoy some of their episodes on iPlayer.

Create

Monarchs would always have their portraits painted as a way to commemorate their reign.

Paint a portrait of a King or Queen of your choice. Maybe you can paint yourself as a King or Queen.

Create and Enjoy

You have just become the King or Queen of your own country.

Create a map of your kingdom.

- Where is your capital city?
- What other cities are there?
- What does your castle look like?
- What does your flag represent?
- What are your laws?
- What is your economy and trade like?
- What sort of military do you need?

Research and Present

Monarchs have been heavily involved in some of the world's key moments in history. Choose one of the event below, research what happened and how the monarchs were involved. Present it in a poster, PowerPoint, etc.

- Battle of Hastings
- War of the Roses
- Spanish Armada
- English Civil War
- WW1

Read and Retell

Find your local library. Borrow a fiction book about a monarch, take it home and enjoy it.

When you have finished reading it, retell the story. You can retell it the same, make changes, or use it to make your own story.

Have fun and be creative.
